My Dear Parish Family:

The signs of summer are finally upon us even though its official start is still one week away. Thanks to the efforts of my wife Anna, at long last our garden has been planted. (For the record, we have worked it out that I do the prep work and she does the planting.) I know that many of you also tend your own wonderful gardens because I have been the beneficiary of your bountiful produce in years past. This fondness for gardening provides us a perspective into today's readings from Scripture regarding the Kingdom of God.

Jesus knew that the people that listened to His words were people of the land, so He used images of agriculture to help them understand this mysterious Kingdom of God of which He preached. He reminds them that after the hard work of planting is completed, there is little else the farmer, or the amateur gardener, can do to actually make the seed transform into a fruit-bearing plant. Ezekiel also hails God's sovereignty using agricultural imagery. It is the Lord who "brings low the high tree, lifts high the lowly tree, withers up the green tree, and makes the withered tree bloom." God is the driver of the growth in the Kingdom, but we are also participants in this mystery.

Yes, we can water it, weed it and fertilize it, but this only enhances the conditions in which we hope growth will occur. The growth is always the action of God. The ancients to whom Jesus first spoke these words understood their vulnerability and their reliance on God for their sustenance. I believe that we today, with our self-reliant tendencies are not so comfortable with things being "out of our control." But this is how it is. This is why building the Kingdom, building a parish-size portion of the Kingdom or even finding our place in this already-but-not-yet Kingdom is so mysterious.

We may prefer to see the direct effect of our efforts, but Jesus reminds us that the Kingdom is also like a mustard seed – tiny and full of untapped potential. If we are to hear and understand His words about the Kingdom to which we now belong, we have to adjust thinking. We have a responsibility to water the seed with our prayers, feed it by our acts of charity and weed its garden by our frequent reception of reconciliation – but the growth is by God's grace. Lord, thy Kingdom come!

Peace of Christ,
Deacon Bruce
