Dear Parish Family,

Our scriptures this weekend speak to us of the sacrament of marriage — most fitting on the heels of the visit to our country by our Holy Father, Pope Francis. Today (Sunday) is also the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, whose model of life the pope has chosen to emulate in caring for the natural world and the poor. During his visit, our Holy Father spoke often of the importance of the family and the highlight of his trip was his time in Philadelphia for the World Meeting of Families.

In his address to bishops last Sunday in Philadelphia, the Holy Father reminded them (and us) that the family is the “joyous confirmation of God’s blessing upon the masterpiece of creation.” He further stated that in order to recognize this gift most fruitfully, a spirit of “gratitude and appreciation should prevail over concerns and complaints.” And succinctly, the pope pointed out correctly: “Without the family, not even the Church would exist.” How true.

The Holy Father also warned of the dangers of our current culture in allowing “consumption...to determine what is important.” In our quest to consume more and more, we develop a “supermarket” mentality where competition of human wants and desires drives us to make choices to satisfy the loneliness of the heart that really is only satisfied in the proper development of human bonding that is learned and nurtured most readily in the family.

This is easy to notice if we have eyes to see. Have you ever seen a family out to dinner where most if not all are looking at their cell phones as opposed to enjoying time with each other? Where’s the human bonding in that? How much time is spent on social media as opposed to social interaction with a real human person? This is not to indict technology and the useful tools it brings us; rather, it points to the clear need to proactively seek the necessary balance in our lives and continuously work at building and strengthening family life, which can only come from developing the bonds of human relationships.

This family life begins with and is sustained by strong marriages. The husband and wife who continually strive to deepen their love and commitment to each other and, despite the obstacles and difficulties that will inevitably come, work toward building the bond between them. This requires making time to spend with each other and as a family with their children. With so many activities today, it is easy for families to be disconnected. Maintaining the human bonds requires work and we cannot be afraid of putting in the effort or sacrifice, lest we give in to the “consumption” trap about which Pope Francis speaks.

Taking our cue from the Holy Father and allowing the Holy Family to be our model, let us adopt a greater sense of gratitude for our families and family life. Let us make the effort to build the human interpersonal bonds that are so important to building up the family and ultimately the Church. As the Holy Father concluded: “The family is the proof of an irrevocable blessing of God destined for all the children who in every age are born into this difficult yet beautiful creation which God has asked us to serve!”

In Christ,
Fr. Joe Previte
